Peppery Oratory Marks Council Session As City Zoning Ordinance Is Up

Upland Attorney Hints at Dire Effects It Will Have in Community.

MEASURE BECOMES LAW

Johns Not Much Impressed With Warning of Attorney John That Once Commission Has Power It Will Work Hardships on Owners.

By an ordinance enacted by City Council at its meeting last night, the City Planning Commission was created and the City Planning Commission empowered to determine what sort of construction could take place in those territories as well as establish lines and other regulations under the duties of such a body.

With the ordinance up for its final reading before the City Council today was visited by Attorney John C. Adams, of Uniontown, representing George Asar, against whose building injunction has been issued in court a Uniontown on the petition of the Planning Commission. Asar intended to build in Race street, just north of Jefferson avenue.

Attorney John appeared, he said, as counsel for Mr. Asar "and several others." He said he doubted if the people of Connellsville or the commission knew what great powers were being given to the Planning Commission by the passage of the ordinance reading "residential sections."

"When you declare that a residential section," he said, "it doesn't only cover this consideration to say no more or garages may be built, but you put it in their power to say what kind of a house shall go up or what price shall be paid for it. The commission can be a detriment."

Mrs. I. F. VanNatta, Mrs. E. R. Shupe, Mrs. A. B. Long and Mrs. D. L. Johnston were in the audience and each spoke in favor of the commission and establishing of residential ones.

"We people have enough trust in the commission for them to decide what may go on our lots," Mrs. VanNatta declared.

"I am very much in favor of the commission. It is what Connellsville has needed for a long time and I think it is very much on the South Side," said Mrs. Shupe.

"We all want a residential section on the South Side and would like the ordinance to go through," said Mrs. Johnston.

"I agree with all these ladies here," said Mrs. Long's remark.

"Mrs. E. C. Shupe, president of the Planning Commission spoke.

"The Planning Commission is doing the best it can," he declared. "We are working as diligently as we could considering the circumstances connected with it. We found it under a book to cover the whole lot in one section, but we have no more left. Sections there would be none left. They would all have been destroyed by the erection of non-residential buildings. We blocked out two sections for the purpose of starting. The idea is not a hardship and the lines on no one will be injured. We are working out piece by piece as well as we can."

"The thing that brings this crisis is the man Mr. John represents. It is allowed to continue it will harm the property values of every house in that section. The houses on that street are built in a uniform line, with a porch between. Each is built and maintained by a working person. There is no other place in the city like it and yet this vandal, disregarding the rights of other people, is coming in to erect a building that will destroy the value of every property in that block."

Speaking of the powers of the commission he said it did not intend to be oppressive or injurious but he said that when a lot in a residential section was owned by a man, it could be used for residential purposes only.

"All this particular ordinance does is to declare two sections of the city residential sections where nothing but dwellings may be built. It is just as normal in the course of time, more this district, then it may be necessary to change the lines."

Attorney John protested against Mr. Shupe speaking of his client as a vandal and said the man intended to spend $15,000 to $14,000 in the building.

He will spend here a few days before and after attending the convention. Mr. Williamson is now 70 years of age and announces that he expects this to be the last visit he will be able to pay to this section.

Escape From Gallows Will Satisfy Parents Of Chicago Slayers

By United Press.
CHICAGO, July 22.—The millionaires' parents of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, "super-intellectuals," who pleaded guilty to the murder of Robert Franks, aged 14, are reputed to be having the boys jailed for life. Clarence Barron, chief defense attorney, declared today in revealing the dramatic conference of attorneys and relatives to decide on a line of action.

"Neither the parents nor defense attorneys want to see the boys freed," Barron said, "but we do not want them to hang. By pleading guilty these boys forfeited all hopes of being freed. They cannot and they should not go free. Our only desire is to save them from the gallows and we would be satisfied if they would receive life imprisonment. Of course, we would welcome a lighter sentence."

He had been confined for about two weeks. He was pastor of the United Brethren Church in Windsor. In addition to his widow he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. H. H. Miles of Greensburg and three sons, Rev. Warren Hayes, a missionary in Tokyo, Japan, and E. R. and John A. Hayes, both at home. Two brothers and four sisters survive and his mother, who lives near Johnstown, also survives.

Funeral service will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Interment will be in Grand View Cemetery, Johnstown.

Flatwoods Baptists Observe Communion

Sunday, July 20 was communion Sunday at the Flatwoods Baptist Church. The attendance and interest in the Sunday school was the largest and best of any Sunday this year. The minister gave the "Message of the Baptist World Alliance," which is a statement of Baptist principles and purposes to the Christians and people of the world. At the close of the service he gave an invitation and six responded and were received for baptism. The ordinance of baptism will be administered next Sunday morning after church.

The pastor has never held a communion service in the Flatwoods church during his almost three years as pastor without giving the head of fellowship to new members. This makes a wonderful record for the church and pastor.

REPUBLICANS WILL CONDUCT CAMPAIGN NATIONAL IN SCOPE

No Particular Drives to Win "Doubtful" States; to Be on Broad Issues.

CONFERENCES OPENED

By United Press.
WASHINGTON, July 22.—The Republican campaign by personal direction of President Coolidge and under the direct management of National Chairman William M. Butler, will be national in scope and founded on national issues.

No particular drive will be launched to win "doubtful" states nor will local appeals be made to sway sectional sentiment away from Davis or LaFollette.

The Republican campaign will be waged on broad issues of national appeal.

These decisions were the first important ones reached in the political conferences between President Coolidge and Butler that are proceeding here today. Butler, having completed the construction of a campaign organization returned here yesterday to report to the President on his work and to discuss the fundamental issues on which the Republican ticket will appeal to the voters.

Butler declared the Republican party would not enter into sectional contests or advocate principles in one part of the country which would not be equally advocated in other sections. This was taken to mean that Mr. Coolidge has decided against taking extraordinary efforts to storm LaFollette's reported strongholds in the Northwest and that efforts there would be confined to general election appeals as in the East.

It was pointed out by one of Mr. Coolidge's closest political advisers that the Republican board of strategy had by no means given up hope of beating LaFollette in Minnesota and the Dakotas though these states have generally been agreed to be LaFollette's surest ones after Wisconsin. The President's advisers hold the primaries last spring show regular Republicans in those states practically equal in number to the more radical voters.

BRAZILIAN FEDERALS OPEN HEAVY FIRE ON REBELS AT SAO PAULO

By United Press.
BUENOS AIRES, July 22.—Brazilian federal forces started a heavy bombardment of rebel positions in Sao Paulo cities yesterday according to a radiogram from the Union Inter-American, at 1 A. M. local time. There have been heavy casualties among the civilian population, the radio said, but there was no mention of any Americans having been killed.

Federal troops, now re-enforced until they number more than 26,000, are encircling Sao Paulo cities and have brought up the batteries of heavy artillery. Thousands of refugees have fled into the interior and towards Santos, which is calm. All railroads leading into Sao Paulo City have been cut and the famous coffee capital now is beleaguered on all sides.

Some mob depredations are reported, indicating the population may have got out of control of the rebel government temporarily. These disorders, however, are reported being checked. The big American packing plant in Sao Paulo including the $20,000,000 Armour plant, built during the war are reported undamaged.

Davis Indicates His Acceptance Speech Is Short

By United Press.
DARK HARBOR, Me., July 22.—John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, is going in for a 20-minute speech campaign. This is one of several innovations in Presidential campaigns that the candidate contemplates. Another is that most of his campaign addresses will be made in the evening so that those wishing to hear his more important utterances can sit at home and tune in on him.

Davis' speech of acceptance probably will be longer than most of his other speeches. At that, however, it probably will not run more than 1,000 words and he told his advisers that a 20-minute and not to exceed 30-minute speech, will take better with his audience than any longer exposures.

Four Passengers on Boat Killed; Fifth Badly Hurt In Collision During Fog

By United Press.
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Lives of four passengers were crushed out, a fifth hurled himself overboard in his grief at the loss of his wife, and others aboard the Eastern Steamship Company's liner, Boston, were badly injured when that vessel was rammed in the fog-bound entrance to Block Island sound shortly before midnight.

First stories of the horror aboard the liner, from which 800 passengers were rescued in small boats, were brought here today when the Boston, disabled and taking in water through a gaping hole in her starboard side, was towed to the wharf, while tugboats and coast guard cutters brought the injured survivors to hospitals.

The oil tanker, Swift Arrow, which crashed into the Boston in a dense fog off Point Judith was able to make port under her own power.

With the arrival of the cutter Aushnet which hurried from duty on "turn now" to bring a badly injured survivor here, it was learned that as the very prow of the tanker cut into the night boat, passengers were caught in their cabins and crushed. A woman is reported to have been instantly killed in the collision, whereupon her husband, frantic with grief, threw himself overboard and was drowned.

STAND OF BANKERS ON GERMAN LOAN IS SHOCK TO ALLIES

By United Press.
LONDON, July 22.—Leaders of the allied conference attempting to agree on a plan for application of the export report to solve the German reparations problem, met hurriedly in Downing street today to discuss the serious situation which had arisen following a demand of the Anglo-American banking group for better guarantees to safeguard the proposed loan to Germany.

News that the bankers did not consider sufficient the guarantees proposed by the committee of the conference, caused consternation. Prime Minister MacDonald immediately got in touch with Premier Herriot, Premier Thomsen of Belgium and the Italian minister of finance and the four went into session at No. 10 Downing street at 10 A. M.

The Daily Telegraph says that Thomas Lamont, representing the American bankers, told the premiers the bankers cannot touch any proposed loan to Germany without much better guarantees than those so far suggested. The guarantees must include evacuation of the Ruhr.

Premier Herriot was cloistered with Lamont all last evening, pleading with him to reconsider the ultimatum out of consideration for French feeling which the Premier said cannot countenance evacuation of the occupied German territory at this time.

The American banker listened to Herriot's argument attentively but replied that a loan under the proposed guarantees is impossible.

Imbrie May Have Been Victim of Political Plot

By United Press.
MOSCOW, July 22.—Further reports indicating that the murder of American Vice-Consul Imbrie in Teheran may have been the result of a political plot designed to embarrass the Persian government, were received here today.

A dispatch agency from Teheran says that after media buy was declared the government arrested a number of prominent conservative leaders and closed the plants of three newspapers. Another dispatch says the Cossack police in Teheran lost one killed and 12 wounded in endeavoring to rescue the consul from the mob which beat him to death.

DAVIS TO DISCARD DEMOCRATIC LABELS ON TARIFF ISSUES

Is for "Competitive Tariff," Not "Free Trade" or "Tariff for Revenue Only."

Lines with Republicans

On the Basic Principles of Protection, Now that the Southern and Western States Have Found That They Require Benefits of a Real Tariff Law.

By ROBERT T. SMALL, Special Correspondent of The Courier Copyright, 1924, by The Courier.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—John W. Davis is to introduce an entirely new tariff note in the coming presidential campaign. He will lead the Democrats in a broader stand on this subject than they have ever taken before. Mr. Davis long has believed in what he calls a "competitive tariff."

To his mind the proper tariff for the American producer is one that will permit him to compete on a fair basis with foreign production where labor costs are cheaper because living standards are lower. This is a far cry from the "free trade" label which once was attached to all Democrats, but it is in line with what Mr. Davis believes in to be sound economic theories. It also meets the demands from solidly Democratic sections of the country that the tariff be reckoned on a scientific rather than a political basis. The South now has many interests that require a tariff to keep them on a fair competitive basis with Europe and other sections of the world.

Although the Democrats will continue to assail the Republican policy of "protection," their tariff declarations do not leave the two old parties in theory so very far apart. Democratic victories in the past have been looked forward to as upsetting to domestic industry built up on a fairly high tariff foundation. The new Democratic theory that production should be guarded on a fair competitive basis removes one of the bugaboes of the old campaign.

Under the new Democratic view tariff no longer would be levied for "revenue only" but would be fixed on a basis of "fair revenue" for the government and the assurance of proper competitive standards for American production.

The idea of a competitive tariff is not entirely a new one. Prominent Democrats among them John T. Barnett of Colorado, who comes from a sugar producing state, have for some time been advocating the competitive idea as a means of meeting Republican protectionism. Mr. Barnett has argued that a competitive tariff is in line with Democratic policies. The word competition has a popular ring to it. The word "protection" carries with it, on the other hand, the Democrats say, the idea of coddling and protecting beyond the lines of reason. They will continue to berate "protection" because of this fact.

Oral Examinations For Mine Foremen, Fire Bosses Soon

LITTLE VANDERBILT GIRL SAVED AS SHE GOES DOWN IN POOL

Harry Snyder, Father of Little, Rescues Child at Leisnering No. 1.

THIRD GAME ARRANGED

Baseball and Basketball of Dickinson Run Car Shop Will Clash Third Time Thursday Evening at "Y" Grounds; Council Falls to Meet.

Special to The Courier.

VANDERBILT, July 22.—Ruth Snyder, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snyder of Main street, had a close call Sunday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock when she nearly drowned at the Leisnering No. 1 swimming pool. The little girl, unable to swim, was in bathing. Fearlessly she went out into the deep section of the pool where she might sooner learn to swim. The little tot, unaware of the depth of the pool, happened to dive into a four-foot section, just a foot or so deeper than she is tall.

Her father, Harry Snyder, standing nearby, seeing her go under for the third time, jumped into the water and brought her out. A large number of spectators and bathers were on the scene but none made any attempt to rescue the child. Mr. Snyder was glad in his "Sunday best" when he dived into the water.

Baseball vs. Basketball. The married and single men of the Dickinson Run car shop will clash for the third time this year when they meet Thursday evening at the Dickinson Run Y. M. C. A. grounds. The games are being played for the benefit of the Dickinson Run Athletic Association that is financing the railroad baseball team.

Scouts Enjoy Recreation. One game of volleyball and two of basketball were played by the Boy Scout Troop 2 last evening in carrying out the recreation program at the James Cochran Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church (recreation grounds). The attendance was low as the scouts were busy working on the swimming pool that is being made at Jefferson School. The regular routine of business was transacted at the scout meeting in the church. First aid tests were given to the scouts by W. E. Baker, Cliff Damers and Rev. H. H. Beall.

Freeing Eyeglasses

Since optical glasses cannot be cut unless they are fixed in an immovable position, it has been the practice to give them to iron frames of various sizes and shapes. Until a few years ago the plates of glass, when finished, were knocked off the frames by means of a light mallet, the blow being delivered cautiously upon the edge of the plates. Naturally enough, this was a delicate and dangerous bit of work, and unless performed by the most expert of workmen, resulted, of course, in the injury of the lens. But the discovery was made that the blocks of crystal separated more readily when they had been exposed to a certain degree of cold. The result has been what might be called a revolution in the making of optical glasses—Washington.

What's in a Name?

Why do you call your wife Oyster? This was the question put to a lady by a judge because she had named her wife.

"Because that is her name."

"Name an odd name for a woman."

"Well, her folks gave her a hard name. Her full name is Oyster-shell-mum. Of course I might use the last syllable, 'mum' on the husband's point of view, but she's never mum."

Great Players From Notre Dame College

A fan said who was the best baseball player ever turned out of an Indiana college. That is a matter of opinion. Most of the great baseball players have come from Notre Dame. There was Beckwith, the great Indian outfielder of his day, whose bright career was short indeed. There was Mike Powers, who caught for Indianapolis and for many years for the Athletics. There was Gibson, pitcher of the same era and later Knickerbocker star of Chicago's championship Cubs. Later, there was Dubuc, pitcher, and Red Murray, catcher, who developed into a great outfielder with the Giants, and Daniels, first baseman and outfielder.

A rather fast bunch they were—these old-timers of Notre Dame. And Neph, with the Giants, who learned baseball at Rose Poly, was rather sweet as a collegian. Purdue turned out Trappener, catcher, Indiana selected, in five or six weeks.

Little Simon, who caught with the Pirates when they were world's champions. And it took a long life of years to harvest that bunch of great ones.

Trivial Things Lead to Broken Home Life

"We may talk about the leading causes of divorce—drunkenness, selfishness, cruelty, lack of support—but in my experience I have found that it is the little things which poison," said a social worker, according to the Milwaukee Journal. "These things, of course, do not appear on the surface at the moment when the home is broken, for one of the bigger questions has cropped out as the predominant cause, but try to go back and find where it all really started. Almost invariably the first rift was about some small thing that arose from differences in character."

A good deal of sense to that. We once knew a girl—it was in the days when marriages were still carefully considered before they were consummated—she refused her mother's choice, and was deaf to all pleas. Yes, she liked Jack immensely and on the main points of life they were agreed. "But, mother, on many little things we are at total disagreement. I like neatness, and Jack is not neat. I like to sit up and dress with the start of the day and Jack is a layabout until after most others are at their work. You know how strictly I keep account of all I spend; when we go out together Jack never knows whether he has a dollar to pay the bill until it is presented to him. I fear that these little disagreements would make our lives unhappy."

Perhaps one might say that a great love would overcome all this. In some cases it may; but the experience of the social worker shows that in many cases it does not. We'd have more happy homes if the young women and the young men about to be married each analyzed more closely the little points in the character of the other.

Colony of New Haven Had First Blue Laws

In 1715 it was ordered by the general court that a suitable man be appointed to construct a code of laws for the New Haven colony. The appointment fell to Governor Eaton, and he was instructed by the general court to study the laws of Massachusetts colony, and also the "Discourse on Civil Government in a New Plantation," by Reverend Minister Gorton, to aid him in his work.

Governor Eaton promptly issued a code of laws, many of which were from the Massachusetts code. Duly presented to the elders of correct jurisdiction, the fruit of the governor's toil was by them approved and passed, says the Detroit News. The general court, moreover, ordered 500 copies to be printed for the New Haven colonists.

At this period of history New Haven was an entirely different and separate colony from Connecticut, the latter being made up of the towns of Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield and wild adjacent territory.

The term "blue laws," therefore, undoubtedly came from the fact that the first printed laws of either colony, being those of Governor Eaton, were enveloped in blue paper. So the code of Governor Eaton comprised the real and original blue laws and since these were enacted for New Haven colony it is further established that they should be called the "blue laws of New Haven colony" and not of Connecticut. The laws of other colonies were also used in constructing the code and many of them are at the present time upon the statute books of Connecticut. Many of the better laws of that state today are founded on them.

Know Their Origin

A young woman recently received instruction in the art of Indian basketry, and had made several copies of Indian baskets of which she was very proud. A friend, who had been living in Arizona, called upon the young woman, who showed the baskets with considerable pride.

"They are really very well done," commented the visitor. "But, of course, they are not the real Indian baskets."

"Why, Mrs. Robinson," indignantly exclaimed the maker, "how can you say that when I flat told you that I made them myself?"

MOUNT PLEASANT BAPTISTS EXTEND CALL TO PASTOR

Minister of Northumberland, Pa., Is Invited to Take Charge There.

NOW REPAIRING CHURCH

Committee From Council and Memorial Association Will Ask West Penn to Move Tracks to Allow Location of Monument in Center of Diamond

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 22.—At a meeting at the Baptist Church here on Sunday a call was extended to Rev. T. H. Robertson of Northumberland, Pa. There will be no church service at the Baptist Church until September 7. The church is being repaired.

Memorial Location Discussed. A special council meeting was held last evening when members of the Memorial Association met with council to discuss the location of the monument on the diamond. A. King representing the Memorial Association, presented the matter. The association still wishes to have the memorial erected on the center of the diamond, and have the street cars go around it on either side. A committee made up of E. H. Swartz and John Wilson, of council, and M. A. King, and James S. Bradock of the Memorial Association, was asked to go to Mr. Lynn of the West Penn and put the matter before him and see if it would be possible to have the tracks changed so the monument could be placed in the center of the square.

The finance committee will meet tonight and an effort will be made to secure ways and means to raise money for this memorial.

May Use Institute Rooms. The school board has decided to use the institute rooms for school purposes if it can be arranged so that enough children can be sent there to justify them in repairing the places. The distance to these rooms is not any greater than in most towns for the children to get to their schools. The school board has come to the place where it will have to furnish the rooms and the children will have to find the way to get to them. More children are coming into school this year and already the board has built two portable buildings at a cost of several thousand dollars, one on the high school lawn and one on the First Ward lawn.

Otherbels Guild Meets. A meeting of the Otherbels Guild of the United Brethren Church was held at the church last evening. Business was transacted.

Personal. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mullin and family of Shamokin are visiting with friends here.

Dainty Tea Apron Can Be Made by Seamstress

Most housewives like dainty tea aprons. Here is one that fills that requirement and is easy to make. Cut the pattern out of paper first, cut it all you get it to fit the way you wish the shape of the pattern is shown in the illustration. Lay the pattern on your material. Use silk, very sheer organdie or voile. Mark around the pattern with pencil. Have the whole thing pinned. That is, have it hemmed along the pencil marks. Then cut through the hemstitching. This piece a piece edge. The upper bands cross at the back. Sew the lower part of a strap fastener to each of these straps, and the corresponding part to the underside of the tie strings where they meet the shoulder straps. An apron like this makes a nice gift.—Kansas City Star.

It Doesn't Matter

"I suppose you are in favor of having barber shops open on Sunday?" "Oh, I don't know. By the time a man gets rolled up in a dust coat and puts on mow-goggles, it doesn't matter much whether he's shaved or not."

A Cardboard Performance. Two men walked into Westminster Abbey, and one of them, dressed, accompanied by the music of the organ. "There! There!" he murmured. "He says very well," murmured the other.—London Times.

YALE'S UNBEATABLE BOAT CREW WINS OLYMPICS.

New Line Is Creeping Into That Silhouette

Unquestionably there is a new line creeping into the silhouette, notes a writer in the Kansas City Star. Not that the perfectly straight frock has been ousted from the ranks of fashion, but it has given way a bit to other influences. On more than one of the most recent acquisitions to collections of summer models there is unmistakable evidence that designers have recognized the fact that women have a waistline. These frocks have a certain silhouette, rather tight look at the waist and hips, and below this the skirt flares until it is quite wide about the hem.

One sees this newer note in afternoon and evening gowns more often than in street costumes which still adhere to a straight slender line. Recently there have been shown a number of lovely dance frocks with straight plain bodices and wide skirts that flare gradually from the waist to the hem. One charming model has a foundation slip of flesh color chiffon delicately embroidered in gold. The overdress is of light brown tulle with a full skirt pleated at the lower edge. The fullness is arranged at each side, leaving the front and back flat. At the waistline in front are three large gold bows.

This season calls attention to the bright shade of blue that is so much in vogue at the moment. Fashioned of chiffon, the skirt of circular tendency is composed of many layers of chiffon, which gives a particularly graceful effect and an indescribable softness. Drooping sprays of flowers of an exquisite shrimp pink are the only trimming, but the color effect is remarkably attractive.

In these days of sudden changes it is difficult to keep fabrics in their place. Those that once were looked upon as purely utilitarian suddenly make their appearance in circles and removed from their former sphere, while materials once considered appropriate only for occasions of ceremony now are used for sports costumes or those of equal informality.

Brown in All Its Moods and Tenses Now Is Rage

The quiet colors and soft shades and blendings are the smart things for summer brown in all its tints being the last whisper in style says the New York Times. There is all the family of browns in its moods and tenses—like the negro having auburn, wood-brown, beige, cocoa champagne, in soft kid trimmed with glaze kid, lizard skin or any one of the many novel leathers in a deeper or contrasting shade. These are far better styles than the combinations of black and abrupt contrasts for the shoe designer has succeeded in convincing his patrons that uniformity and harmonious blending are more complimentary to the size and shape of the foot than the treatment which makes sharp outlines.

All of the new slippers give a more slender appearance to the foot. Though brown is having such a smart vogue, gray is coming into prominence and some of the finest and most attractive shoes are shown in oriental gray. It is particularly good with the summer colors in gowns. The most charming styles in hosiery are imported to wear with brown in all its shades and now come gray sheer lustrous hose. For as has been repeatedly emphasized it is a

Monarch Bows Before Mayor of London City

All English towns cling to ancient traditions, ancient rights, some of which, of course, are maintained because of legal precedents. Temple Bourne in World Traveler Magazine. The city of London always has been tenacious and jealous of its old rights. In the "good old days" the stout city fathers didn't hesitate to oppose, and fight if necessary, the king himself. Even nowadays, when the king visits "The City" (which is what you call "downtown," where the banks and the big traders hang up their hats) on days of ceremony he surrenders his sword—only by gesture, it is true—to the lord mayor of London, who meets him at Temple Bar in days of old, when kings were bolder, the doughty bankers and merchants of "The City" weren't taking any chances and wouldn't stand for the king with armed men passing the gates that marked the city's frontier.

Today, the lord mayor, representing the ancient liberties and rights of his mighty city, is given the password of the Tower of London by the governor of the Tower under "the king's sign manual," which is to say that King George actually puts his "John Hancock" to the list of words making up the military password over a period of three months.

A Comfortable Swing.

One Mother Says:

I had a woven wire bed spring not in use I painted both frame and wire a soft, cool gray. In the toolhouse there were a lot of chains used about the wagon. I hung the bed by means of these under the trees in the yard, painting the chains gray also. A gray blanket and some bright pillows made it a splendid resting place. A tiny brass chain with a small snap on the end hung from a bough above, to hold up the mosquito netting when needed.

Striking Dress Coat for Early Fall Wear

Incident Well Called Impossible, but True

Most persons can remember at least one startling coincidence in their experience. The elder J. Pierpont Morgan liked to tell of one lucky encounter he had while he was seeking a pair of vases to complete a set of Burrell table decorations on which he had set his heart. Collectors had been rumormongering Europe for them in Mr. Morgan's behalf, and then one stormy night—as Mrs. J. Gordon Harriman tells the story in "From Florence to Politics"—he arrived in London from Liverpool, having come from America without waiting the servants when to expect him.

As he ran up the steps and put his latch key to the door a shivering figure in the vestibule drew two vases from under a torn coat and murmured, "I've been going from house to house all day, won't you buy these, sir? My children are starving."

The light from the half-opened door fell on what seemed to be porcelain from the famous set. While the man waited Mr. Morgan rubbed upstairs to compare the marks. They seemed the same, but it wasn't possible!

"How much do you want for them?" he demanded when he came down.

The man asked a small price, took the money and melted away into the night.

The next day all the London connoisseurs were at Morgan's house, exclaiming, "It's impossible, but true!"

The vases matched, and the set was priceless.

"I wasn't expected in London," said Mr. Morgan. "The man didn't know what I was worth. I never could trace him. How did it happen? Out of all London to come to my house and at that moment!"—Youth's Companion

Geyers Aid to Farmers

Geyers are proving useful adjuncts to farming in Iceland. A well-known dye works in that country hunked up its factory with water pipes direct from the hot springs and, after using the hot water in the celer process and for heating the factory and the workers' homes, conducted it through underground pipes laid in fields, which as a result, yielded three times as much produce as neighboring fields not so equipped, says the Kansas City Star.

Although, from time immemorial, the Icelanders have been familiar with geysers, only recently have their industrial uses been seriously considered.

A project now is on foot to supply Reykjavik with hot water for heating, bathing and washing purposes from one of the neighborhood hot springs.

This New Treatment Never Fails to End Piles

Many sufferers from piles or hemorrhoids have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their cure was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say, "Go to your druggist and get an original box of Moava Suppositories. One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief. They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever."

It's simply wonderful how speedily they act. Blessed relief often comes in one or two hours. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained.

Union Drug Co. dispenses Moava Suppositories in the original box or can get it for you on short notice.

Itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word. For this condition Moava Ointment will be found all that is necessary.—Advertisement.

WHAT TO HAVE FOR DINNER

A meal which does not meet the needs of the body is not an economical meal, although, if the meals are balanced, the result is the same.

Hamburger Steak.—Do not buy the chopped meat, but get a place of round, with none meat, or a bit of pork, and put it through the meat grinder; season well with salt and pepper and a pinch of cloves. Form into a large flat cake and broil under the gas, turning until it is well cooked. Serve with baked potatoes.

Stuffed Onions.—Parboil large-sized onions until soft enough to remove the centers, leaving a cavity to hold the filling. Chop the onion taken from the center, mix with any chopped meat—sausage or chopped beef, bread crumbs and seasoning. Fill the centers, pour around a good beef broth and bake with tender, baking occasionally with the broth from the pan. Just before taking from the oven put a spoonful of well-buttered crumbs on top of each and brown under the gas flame.

Letuce Salad With Mayonnaise.—To prepare the mayonnaise beat one egg until light, then add a pint of good oil. Add the oil a little at a time at first, then, when a few tablespoons are added, it may be poured on in larger quantities, beating well after each addition. After the oil is all used add lemon juice, salt, cayenne, sugar and mustard, if liked. Put away in the ice chest in a Mason jar. This will be good as long as it lasts. Serve on lettuce, sprinkled with chopped peanuts.

A but recent is well liked using the ingredients and seasonings as for meat and substituting nuts in place of it. Bake during its baking with tomato. Such a loaf should be served with a good sauce rich with butter.

To rid the pesky bedbugs you really see how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live ones.

P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading Hospitals, Hotels and Railroad Companies that the safest and most economical way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, moths and ants is to use the new discovery, Pesky Devils Quinosis P. D. Q.

A 35c package of P. D. Q. makes a quart enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, fleas and moths and at the same time destroys their eggs. Impossible for them to exist when P. D. Q. is properly used. Free a patient about in every package to get the pesky devils in the hard-to-get-at places and have the juice.

P. D. Q. is not an insect powder, no mucus or dust does not burn the bedding.

This is the first photograph of Arthur W. Cullen, of the Chicago Board of Trade, a Canadian by birth, who has been hailed as the "Grain King of America" by virtue of his foresight in buying, months ago, huge quantities of corn and wheat. He has already profited nearly $2,000,000 by the recent large advances in prices on these two staples. He bought corn at less than 40 cents a bushel and began his dealings around $1.50. His profits on wheat were as great.

The Paramount

"PHANTOM JUSTICE"—Starting drama of crookdom, provides splendid entertainment today at the Paramount.

"Phantom Justice" is real entertainment, but there is a moral behind that quality, a moral subtly "put across" without descending from the story itself. In fact, the moral is what strengthens the theme of "Phantom Justice," instead of hindering the action, as is so often the case with "moralizing" films.

As "Phantom Justice" has done in other communities it will wage last night's showing of this film has already caused some deep thinking in certain quarters.

The film concerns a young criminal lawyer with a complex centering around wealth, who so loves his sense of duty to his father's name, so deeply that he allows himself to become the willing tool of a gang of metropolitan gangsters and all-around crooks. He not only keeps them out of prison, but also aids them in their criminal craft by methods decidedly unethical and oftentimes downright criminal. The young lawyer finally falls victim to his own cleverness and then comes the thrilling climax.

Wednesday and Thursday, "Temporary Marriage," with Kenneth Harlan and Mildred Davis in the leading roles and "Gateway to the West," will be shown.

The Soisson

"UNSEEN HANDS," with Wallace Beery in the stellar role, is on view today and tomorrow at the Soisson. In "Unseen Hands," Jean Schickel played by Beery, is shown as a carefree, healthy male with a taste of wanderlust that has him trooping through the northern frontier of France with nothing on his mind but his hat. Then he meets George LeQuintrec and his beautiful wife. He reads them a favor and is installed at the mine owned by LeQuintrec.

Jan falls madly in love with Mrs. LeQuintrec. So keen is his desire that he seizes the opportunity to shut off the lights when a major operation is being performed upon her husband. He woos and wins the widow. The past haunts him and taunts him so, he up and flees, deserting the wife and leaving her penniless, even taking her jewels after he had sold the mine and kept the money.

LeQuintrec's son trails him and rounds him up at an old Spanish rancho in Arizona. There is a bitter fight. Jean has married an Indian woman and he lives of her and looks her up in her room so she won't bother him. He traps her pretty daughter but retribution steps in when the villainy plot is boiling over.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Betty Blythe, Lowell Sherman, Elliott Dexter and Pauline Garon will be seen in "The Spitfire."

The Orpheum

"NO MOTHER TO GUIDE HER"—presenting Genevieve Tobin in the leading role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at the Orpheum.

This production reveals with much simplicity and truthfulness the various paths trod by children of the rich and poor.

The sort of homeliness found in "No Mother to Guide Her" is reminiscent of "Over the Hill."

In addition to Miss Tobin, the star who Broadway has been applauding this year by reason of her performance in "Polly Preferred" the cast includes Lolita Robertson, J. D. Walsh, John Wells Dillon and Jack McLean. It is splendid in its simplicity and high-strung sympathy.

For purely technical merits, "No Mother to Guide Her" is excellent. Magnificent sets, both interior and exterior, together with much natural beauty, form an adequate setting for this appealing story. The hopes of each of the children, all of whom are ambitious, are stifled in themselves. The director has entwined them into a single story thread from which the interest can never stray. To see life, as "No Mother to Guide Her" presents it, is quite helpful in guiding our own destinies. The mothers, daughters and sons, and fathers, too, who composed last night's audience, all found a direct message for them in this drama production which is certainly worth seeing.

Jacobs Cooper will be seen in "The Boy of Rappers" Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

New Treatment For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Swollen veins are dangerous and often burst. Sufferers are advised to get a two-ounce, original bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength), at any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bursches at once. Physicians recommend Emerald Oil. It is used in hospital practice and a small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush as directed until the swelling is reduced to normal. It is guaranteed.

So marvelously powerful is Emerald Oil that enlarged glands, wens and even goitres disappear when used steadily. Union Drug Co.—Advertisement.

"Are either of you in love with her?"

"Are either of you in love with her?" Mary asked.

Mary asked raising her eyes and looking her companion in the face.

Christopher hesitated for several moments before answering. Mary began to tear into small pieces the strip of omelette which she was holding. Her face seemed suddenly to have become very white and tired.

"I am sure that Gerald is not," Christopher answered. "As for me—well, that sort of thing is a little out of my line, isn't it? The most serious part of the situation is that I am afraid the child is in love with Gerald."

"She will get over that," Mary said dryly. "Most of the girls I know have been in love with Gerald at some time or another. Sooner or later, the wife uses him out and the butterfly flies off away somewhere else. It may seem unattractive, but I am more concerned about you, Christopher, than Gerald."

He passed his arm through hers, an action which their increasing intimacy seemed to render perfectly natural. "Mary," he began, "most are just the one person in the world to whom I could confess an impulse of folly, and his is, I suppose, the one place I could do it in. I frankly don't understand what you mean by being in love. When I have thought of marriage, it has been in connection with some dear woman friend who would make a home for me and be a companion. Of course, I expected to care for her and all that, but—promise you won't laugh at me?"

"I shall not laugh," Mary promised. "For the first time in my life, that child has made me think of other things." Christopher acknowledged simply. "I don't know that it amounts to anything, I dare say really it is an unexpected vein of kindness which she has touched; but there it is. I have an absurd feeling of fondness for her. The idea of her becoming a plaything for Gerald or anybody makes a madman of me."

"And she?"

"Looks upon me as a kind person but an intolerable nuisance. She dreams of nobody but Gerald. If he lifts his little finger, she is his."

"Really?" Mary drawled coldly. "Please don't judge her too harshly."

Christopher begged. "Myrtle is temperamental, incapable of a mean or an immoral action. She is just a child of nature, only instead of being swayed by the lower instincts, she is swayed by the higher ones. She loves Gerald, and nothing else counts with her. She would have thrown herself into the river sooner than have given herself in marriage to the lakekeeper. She is equally capable of giving her life and her heart to Gerald. If he requires the sacrifice."

Many turned her head towards the window.

"I think that father wants his piece of backgammon," she observed. "We had better go in. I am afraid. We must talk of this again some time. Will you go first and say that I shall be there directly?"

Christopher stopped—obediently through the window, and Mary passed on to the further end of the terrace, where the shadows were deeper. For a moment her self-control slipped away. Her fingers gripped the ivy stalks fiercely. There were tears in her eyes, her rather firm but sensitive little mouth quivered passionately. It seemed so many years since Christopher had first represented to her all that she desired in manhood—a man of character, a worker, a sportsman when the time came, a sportsman when she was ready to give him his brain and heart. She had found him in a moment a cabinet minister later in life, perhaps. She had thought with happiness of the many ways in which she could further his career; had dreamed with pleasure of playing hostess for him in a joint establishment. She had known that the consummation of her wish was inevitable, unless something should come between. And something had come unexpectedly between—this peasant girl this birth of a spurious sentiment—nothing, in a man like Gerald, but very much to be dreaded in a person of Christopher's poise and steadfastness. She was a proud young woman, for all her gracious ways, and, although she refused to say anything about it, she felt that she was suffered in those few moments was not only of the heart.

Christopher and his host in the intervals of their prime talked of the latest suicide. With the usual amazing secrecy of the local press, not one word had appeared in any paper published in the vicinity.

"I feel a great deal of sympathy for our neighbors," Lord Hintersley remarked. "Old Colonel Hunkinson, whom I met on the terrace this morning told me that the man was bringing them money for some estate he had sold, which were practically their only means of subsistence."

Lord Hintersley picked up his cards. Mary came in from the terrace and seated herself by Gerald's side. The quietness of the evening, however, was almost immediately disturbed. The butler threw open the door, announcing guests.

"The Ladies Victoria and Millicent Cromwell, Mr. James Cromwell, Lady Bessie."

They all trooped in—intimates of the young people of the house.

"We want you to come down to the club for an hour or two," Lady Victoria, who was always the leading spirit, suggested. "Dad's just paid my dress allowance, and I'm dying to lose it and Jimmy's going to give us supper and take us to dance somewhere afterward."

"Added to which," her sister, Lady Millicent, went on, "we have brought you news. We know all about the man who committed suicide the other night."

"There was a dead silence, a most effective background for Lady Victoria's announcement."

"They tried hard to keep it secret," she said, "but an English journalist discovered the truth. The man's name was Zubin, and he was the steward of two unfortunate ladies who live near you. He had just arrived from Russia with a large sum of money for them, went into the rooms, gambled with it and lost the lot. They said that it was nearly three million francs and that it was every penny those poor women had in the world."

Christopher and Gerald were taking an early morning stroll and displaying an almost feminine partiality for the shop windows, when the former suddenly felt his friend's hand tighten upon his arm. They had paused to look through the plate-glass window of a jeweler's shop in the Rue de Paris.

"What is it, old chap?" Christopher asked.

Gerald pointed to a pearl necklace which hung in the window.

"You see that?" he exclaimed tragically. "That belonged to Pauline—to Mademoiselle de Pontiere. And that marquise ring below—I am perfectly certain her aunt was wearing. Wait a moment, old fellow."

Gerald entered the shop hastily. A very suave Frenchman came forward to meet him.

"Can you tell me anything about that pearl necklace and the rings below?" Gerald inquired.

"But certainly sir," the man replied. "One moment."

He unfastened the window and brought out the stand on which the necklace rested. The color of the pearls was wonderful. They were not large, but they had an almost pink glow.

"I have no doubt monsieur is a judge and I need say little about these pearls," the shopman began. "I would point out to you, however, that they were matched for royalty itself, and the quality of each one is superlative. If monsieur is a purchaser, I could quote him seven thousand pounds, and for that sum there is not such another necklace in the world."

"I recognize the necklace," Gerald admitted. "I might, under certain circumstances, be induced to buy it. I came in, however, to ask you how you obtained possession of it, and the rings below?"

"The man's manner changed. "Monsieur," he said, "I am not able to explain exactly how this jewelry came into our hands. There are certain coincidences which, in the interests of our clients, we are forced to respect."

"Quite so," Gerald agreed, "but I can assure you that I am not an impatient inquirer. This is my name—he handed the man a card—"and I was an acquaintance of Mademoiselle de Pontiere, from whom you must have obtained this necklace. I last saw Mademoiselle de Pontiere under very tragic circumstances, and I understand that they have now left Monte Carlo. I am most anxious to obtain word as to their whereabouts."

"I regret deeply that I am entirely powerless in the matter, sir," the man replied.

Gerald held up the pearls and let them slip through his fingers. He remembered something which Pauline had once said to him—"Pearls are the widows' children. They love and care for them as such."

"I have reason to surmise," Gerald went on, "that a misfortune has befallen these ladies. If they had confided in me, it would have given me the greatest pleasure to have offered them assistance."

The jeweler smiled hesitantly to be continued.

INTENSIVE STUDY OF THE CRIMINAL

He Is Being Analyzed in Psychological Laboratory for Indexing.

The psychology of the criminal is being studied more intensely today than ever before. The criminal is being analyzed from every possible angle with a view to correcting his habits or finding out something new about him, and psychology has enabled us to classify and index him in a manner not dreamed of a few years ago. It has been found, for example, that the age and physical strength of criminals may be studied with profit since they are often determining factors in the particular crimes in which they are capable.

"It has been pointed out," said a veteran detective, "that at least 90 per cent of the hold-up men who have been at work in all of our large cities are mere youths. Many of them are little more than beardless boys and it is rare to find one over thirty. Youth is eternally reckless and is prone to take chances that a man of thirty, experienced in the ways of the world, would deliberately a long time before taking."

"What is true of the hold-up man is true of most criminals. A visit to the city's police stations when the nightly catch of the police is being out, its victims will convince anyone that the majority of our criminals are extremely young men, and if further proof is needed it is only necessary to turn backward the pages of any police blotter. In shooting and stabbing affairs and crimes of special violence the headiest, thoughtless youth is always foremost. He is a victim of impulse and passion, pitifully lacking in self-control."

Two Classes of Burglars. "Take another example the burglar class. There are many subdivisions but, roughly, burglars may be divided into two classes. The daring fellow who jimmies his way into an apartment and the petty sneak thief, who is what his name implies—a cowardly wretch who enters a place on some pretext or only when he finds a door open and no one at home."

"Twenty years ago the bold type of a burglar known as a Dutch houseman was often a man of thirty-five or more, today he is almost exclusively a young man. Burglary is more difficult to learn than it was a quarter of a century ago. This is because modern inventions have made a man's castle more difficult to break into. We have burglar-proof locks and window catches and the like and hidden burglar alarms as well and the burglar who has the temerity to enter such a stronghold must needs be robust and athletic. He must be a fellow who is as agile as a monkey on fire-escape or coping, as he frequently has to depend on his strength and speed in order to get away safely if surprised. Hence only a youth in the prime of physical condition ventures into such a hazardous calling today."

A few years ago a certain well-known gentleman burglar gave the police a merry time of it before he was finally captured and sent away for a long term of years. This fellow performed feats that would stagger a giant. He could climb along the narrowest sort of apartment house coping and could leap successfully across a wide chasm from one roof to another. When we finally cornered him we learned he was a trained athlete and kept himself in the pink condition by walking a gymnasium daily.

"The parallel might be extended further to show that criminals are more or less guided by temperament age and strength in their pursuits. When a housebreaker feels his joints getting stiff and his arms getting soft he realizes he is no longer able to follow successfully the undertakings he used to accomplish without much effort and he either gives up crime for good or follows a criminal pursuit, more in keeping with his years."

Some of Them Reform. "Once a criminal always a criminal" is a harsh saying. It is well known that some men have been drawn into crime by some accident of fortune. Many such I do not doubt, having been caught and punished, have reformed, lived down the past and become useful citizens. But I am discussing the criminals who have not seen the handwriting on the wall and mended their ways. These men have become petty criminals in one way or another. Some have become professional mendicants, others have found berths in underworld dives, and still others have become moonshiners for younger thieves schooling them in the tricks and artifices of their trade. All of them are mixed up in shady pursuits of some kind.

"If it is true that criminals of sixty or more seldom fall into the toils of the police, it is equally true that criminals have no age limit. Now and then you hear of a patriarch being arraigned in one of the courts. Recently a venerable well-dressed man, who was seventy-five years of age, was arrested for forgery. He has been a forger since he was a young man. His plan was to saunter into a store, select something, and when he was about to pay for it discover he had absently left his pocketbook at home.

"He would write a check for a dollar or more than the article called for, pleading he needed cash. Eventually he tripped himself up by laying down too many checks in the same day."

Not Well Balanced. Wain Paw (Indian)—the dog is man's best friend.

Prospector—Perhaps so, but in my opinion they run too much to legs and not enough to tenderloin steaks.

Failed on One Subject. Wife (at breakfast)—Our new girl is a cooking-school graduate.

Hub—She must have flunked badly in biscuits.

The cost to build this house, including heating, plumbing, lighting, painting, ready to live in, but not including wall decorations, should not be more than $4,500 and $5,000. In certain localities where costs are high, the highest figure quoted would be too low. In other localities, the lowest figure quoted would be more than sufficient. The range of $3,500 is given to cover differences in the way the house is built and how thoroughly it is equipped and completed.

The most satisfactory way, however, to get exact costs is to have these plans examined by local contractors and builders. Curious Shepherd Custom.
There was a curious custom in Sussex, England, the explanation of which is somewhat obscure, in connection with the burial of the old shepherd, says the Detroit News. A turf of wood is placed in the right hand of the dead man in his coffin. The purpose of this is believed by many to be that thereby the vacation of the man may be known, and he will be excused for his nonattendance at church on Sundays.

During lambing in particular a shepherd can never leave his flock, and Sunday and weekdays alike may be seen on the downs with his sheepdog attending to the countless duties that call for constant vigilance.

Willing to Be "Fired".
Some of the inmates of the jail were talking a room, and the governor was inspecting the progress of the work.

After watching the men for a few minutes, the governor said to one of the convicts: "Look here, my man, you are putting those in the too close together. That sort of work will never do."

The prisoner laid down his tools and said: "Well, sir, I am willing to be turned off if my work don't suit you. I didn't apply for the job, and if you are dissatisfied—well, you can fire me."

NEW PARTHENON BEING ERRECTED IN NASHVILLE

Exact Replica of Famous Grecian Building Rising in Capital of Tennessee.

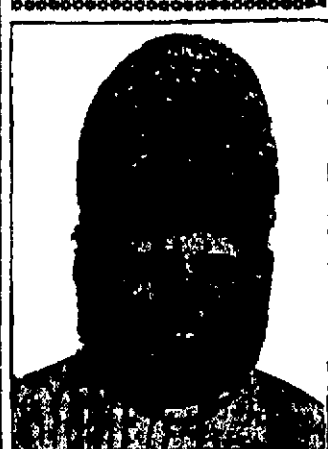

Nashville, Tenn.—Nashville's Parthenon, now nearing completion in Centennial park, will reflect the architectural style of the Parthenon of Athens and be a monument of the city's appreciation of Grecian art. This duplication in Nashville of the famous building of the Fifth century B. C. has been carried out with painstaking care. Detailed plans have reproduced the original Greek architecture, statues, mosaics, and other minute details in their exact form, which, when completed, will be rounded into the only exact reproduction of the Parthenon in the world. It is dedicated.

The Athens Parthenon, according to the sculptor, Bela Kinyo of Nashville and Leopold F. Behl, her husband, engaged in the building of the Nashville edition, was erected in ancient times with an optical appeal. It was constructed as the architectural curve instead of the straight line, the giant columns forming the most difficult feat of architecture.

The Nashville Parthenon, built temporarily, stood in Centennial park as the main arts building during the Centennial celebration, held in 1897, commemorating the admission of Tennessee into the Union and was dedicated on June 1, 1908, the date of Tennessee's one hundredth anniversary.

The city of Nashville since then has decided to make the building a lasting memorial to culture and art, and the work of "making over" permanently is expected to be completed early in 1925.

Wears Helmet and Chin Strap Composed of Bees.

Here is a positive proof that honey bees will not sting. Frank Borscher of Tobasco, Ohio, has over 200 hives of bees. He rarely receives a sting while working with his bees. To prove that honey bees are gentle and seldom sting a person, he had himself photographed wearing this helmet and chin strap composed of live bees. He did not receive a sting—but we'll let Frank do it.

Deadly Scale Killing.
Guam Coconut Palms.
Agua, Guam.—United States marines, under the command of Capt. William W. Allen, who is chief of police of this island, are leading parties of natives in a concerted attack on a most pernicious enemy. The enemy is "infectious destruction," a small insect pest, recently discovered to be destroying coconut palms, banana trees, alligator pear trees and taro.

More than 9,000 trees were found infected in widely separated localities all over the island. The insects are so small they hardly are visible. They attack trees by making the sap, cutting the foliage to form a method of entry at first, and in the last stages to assume the appearance of having been scorched by fire.

The scale is one of the most destructive insects. It recently wiped out the coconut industry of the island of Hawaii, 150 miles from Guam.

Taking It Nicely.
Grandmother had been talking to four-year-old Mary Ellen about becoming angry so easily. After the little girl had listened a few minutes she thought it time to tell of some of her good qualities, so she said:

"Yesterday my doll got stepped on and broken and I didn't cry a bit or scold anybody."

"That was fine," said her grandmother, very much pleased. "And you stepped on your doll?" she asked.

"Why, I did, grandma."

Fate Dog Killed.
Carthage, Mo.—F. S. Patterson lost his life through getting his dog. He was motoring to his fruit farm near Anderson and his favorite dog was riding on the running board. He turned to give the dog a friendly pat and did not notice his car was veering toward a high embankment. Before he realized it the car had tumbled down the steep dirt wall and turned over. Patterson's neck was broken, but the dog escaped unhurt.

Request for Dog.
Elkhorn, Wis.—Clarence Boyce, who died here a few days ago, was a great lover of dogs and when his will was filed here the first request was $5,000 for the care of his dog Spot. The dog was the constant companion of Boyce, a widower, who left no known relatives. The request for the dog was about as large as the case before made to the Baptist and Methodist churches of Elkhorn.
